Committee members discussed issues associated with pressure zones, fire flow and hydrant spacing, water source, and capital projects with Erik at length. The members of the committee were very pleased with the draft plan.

Erik explained that the next step of the project involves a water rate study and an update to the system development charge study.

The committee would like to meet again in November to begin prioritizing the capital project list that is contained in the plan. Leahnette will poll members about their meeting date availability prior to setting a date.
