A VIEW INTO THE PAST -THE HISTORY OF COLUMBIA CITY By Mark Stevens

In future newsletters as space allows, I will be presenting some interesting historical facts about Columbia City. Including discussions of the first settlers, tales of shipyards to shipwrecks, our schools, residents who helped shape the city, and the rise and fall of businesses large and small to just name a few. So stay tuned, and I will do my best to entertain you with a few known facts, and some little known facts of our beautiful little city on the river.

Did you know that Columbia City had the first secondary school in Columbia County? Charles Caples, Joanna (Caples) Maxwell and Hezekiah Caples supplied the land in order to build an academy located along Second Street between I and J Streets. The academy began to accept students in 1872. Students came from all over the county as well as some by boat from Woodland, Washington. At one point the school had an attendance of 60 students. The first teacher was Major E. L. Adams, a Yale graduate. The tuition charge was $5 for a 12-week term. Besides the usual reading, writing and arithmetic, students were instructed in algebra, geometry, surveying, geology, botany, zoology, English composition, along with Greek and Latin. The academy sadly only operated thirteen years and by 1885 had been discontinued and the old two story frame building was torn down in 1935. No photos of the building are known to exist.

LIBRARY NEWS

The library is embarking on determining a 10 year plan. We'd welcome community involvement, so if you're interested in helping us, please contact us at the library.

Recommended Read. The Music Shop by Rachel

Joyce, published 2017.

Paulette Lichatowich recommends this book which received four stars from her favorite book club members. The Music Shop owner is quirky, with the ability to recommend the perfect music to his customers who need a lift in their spirits. His love of vinyl records is not a good business model but one he stubbornly protects.

Art in the Library. Monica Cannon, "My favorite style is whimsical. I find a magic world where things don't look perfect but they are cute and they inspire me to use my imagination. This hobby is very relaxing and I can spend hours at a time playing."

Monica has been playing with watercolor for a while, but never really took a class. "Since I retired, I am more serious about learning. I enjoy making my own greeting cards using watercolors, but I mix whatever comes to mind in them, like ink, glitter, dry flowers, etc."

Visit the library and enjoy her magical paintings.
